CANALS AND RAILROADS.-Controller Olcott, of New York, in his annual report shows that canals are not yet behind the age, when wheat can be carried from Chicago to New York at eight cents a bushel, while the rallroads lost money, as Mr. Ol-cott shows, on every bushel which they car--ried at sixteen cents. - New York Tribune.

MR. WHITTIER'S RESPONSE. - The Literary World for January contains the following graceful poem by Mr. Whittler, written in acknowledgment of the multitude of affectionate tributes called out by the celebration of his seventieth birthday:

of his seventieth birthday:

Beside that milistone where the level sun,
Nigh unto setting, sheds his last, low rays
On word and work irrevocably done.
Life's blending threads of good and ill outspun,
I hear, O frienos! your words of cheer and praise,
Half doubtfu! if myself or otherwise.
Like him who, in the old Arabian joke,
A beggar slept and crowned Caliph woke.
Thanks not the less. With not unglad surprise
I see my hie-work through your partial eyes;
Assured, in siving to my home-taught songs
A higher value than of right belongs,
You do but read between the written lines
The finer grace of unfailfiled designs.
